Holy Father's Prayer Intention for September:

That Christians, inspired by the word of God, may serve the poor and suffering.

Our Journey in Faith

A refrain today that is very popular is that we must do everything we can "to find ourselves - our true selves." This, on the surface, looks like a great ideal, for none of us wants to be other than what we are. No one likes to be "phony", a make-believe person, one who outwardly plays to the crowd but inwardly is uncertain and unsure of oneself. No, it is so much better to be oneself, intact and certain, unafraid of who one really is. Unfortunately our culture does not promote a sense of self-identity, but rather offers models after whom we imitate. So called stars in every field are held aloft as prototypes of what we should have become. Of course they are wealthy, successful, beautiful/handsome, sexy and are forever highlighted in papers, magazines and electronic media. They are those who have made "it"! The rest, namely almost all others, are but an amorphous collection of oddballs.

But one should rightfully ask if these prototypes are in any true sense better (more real, more honest, more happy, more true to self) than the rest of us. The tragedies of their lives seems to indicate they are not. For many, the fictitiousness of their lives of glitter and glory oftentimes has a sad ending.

Contrast their accomplishments with that of the man from Nazareth, named Jesus. He refused to be as others wanted Him to become. To His own self was He true - Holy, compassionate, forgiving. He was a man with a mission sent, as He Himself admits, by His Father to save mankind. He found Himself by giving Himself to others - not in a superficial theatrical way, to please the crowds or to impress others, but rather to heal a broken, self-absorbed humanity. He came to give direction and insight into a more profound reality, our relation to God and God's relation to all of us. Through His cross

#489 St. Paul the Apostle Pg 2

there was not defeat for He rose as He promised. Hope and eternal life was His legacy.

So if we seek to find our real selves look to Christ. His humility is our path to real joy and true acceptance of self.

Father James F. Healy
