Our Journey in Faith

I come from a family with lots of babies. There were six kids and a multiplicity of children of our neighbors. Children were looked upon as a special gift from God and their birth was an occasion for celebrating. With births, baptisms, communions and confirmation the opportunities to get together with friends and family were plentiful. For one thing that was paramount in my family was the obvious love that existed between my parents. Spared the dissention and bickering that we find in some families, there was generally harmony and peace aside from the occasional spats that the children created. Life in a loving family is blessed!

I know that my situation may not be the same for others. Especially I'm thinking of young girls in unstable relations. The fear and dread of finding oneself pregnant without the loving support of family and friends is frightening. Whether married or unmarried their situation calls for a response. Recriminations are too late. Love of new life calls out for help and assistance. This is where God's community is to be found. Whatever we can do to aid and assist a new mother God will surely bless.

We are so fortunate to have a connection with the Sisters of Life. Their whole ministry is dedicated to giving witness to God for the gift of new life and to providing necessary counseling and a loving environment to pregnant women.

We must certainly pray for these young girls and show them our real concern by helping in whatever ways we can.

We value life from the first moment of conception and must do what we can to assist our young mothers.

Fr. James F. Healy
