Our Journey in Faith

The Sunday after Easter has come to be known as Divine Mercy Sunday, declared to be so by Pope John Paul II. Having visited the tomb of St. Maria Faustina Kowalska and read her journal, Pope John Paul was convinced that we must turn to Jesus who is always with us, that we must trust in Him and thus will find comfort in all our anxieties and fears.

The message of St. Faustina is nothing new - that God is merciful and forgiving and that we, too, must show mercy and forgiveness. What is emphasized is that we must have a deeper understanding of God's love. In fact, it is a universal love for everyone, even the greatest of sinners. No one is deprived of His forgiveness if we turn to Him as our savior. As Isaiah says, "This people honors me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me" (Is. 29:13) and Matthew writes, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy." (Mt 5:7)

Having just celebrated Holy Week we read how the chief priests, the Sadducees, and Pharisees, supposed paragons of virtue, turned their backs on Jesus and brought Him to death. Contrast this with the criminal hanging next to Jesus, who called out for mercy and was awarded a place in paradise next to our Lord.

Real mercy evidences itself in a totally transformed person, who from inside self he offers compassion and pity on those who wrong him. Too often we hear people say that they can't forgive because of their memories of the past. With Jesus who forgave even those who put Him to death, He gives us the desire and power to forgive our worst enemies. No one is beyond the pale of our merciful Savior.

This Sunday let us rededicate ourselves to the merciful love of God and exemplify the depth of that mercy to all with true forgiveness for whatever that has happened in the course of our lives.

Fr. James F. Healy
